E. A. WRIGHT BANK NOTE CO
PHILADELPHIA

In placing this
PANORAMIC view of action at Wesleyan before the public, we would not attempt to disarm any criticism with apologies. Our aim has been directed toward originality,
and if we have completely missed
the mark, we ask that our readers
be tolerant and just in their criticism.

THE DIXIAN

In appreciation of the noble qualities of our conquered general,

Dr. Charles R. Jenkins,

we, the Class of Nineteen Hundred and Fourteen respectfully dedicate this volume

War Songs

Alma Mater

Hail, pioneer, the first to blaze the trail
That Learning's door to women opened wide!
Where'er they be, thy daughters hear thy call,
And hasten, loyal ever, to thy side.
Of what thou wert, thy children proudly boast;
Of what thou didst, when no one else would dare;
Yet, not in laurels past we glory most,
But what thou art, and shalt be, is our care.
We love thy atmosphere of kindliness;
We love thy piety and simple faith;
We love thy name of oldest and the best—
We love thy ideals, Alma Mater!

College Hymn

O God of Love, O Lord of Truth,
To Thee we raise our prayer
That Thou wilt keep our college home
Forever in Thy care.
As here we pause to learn of Truth
May Wisdom's Truth divine
So teach our willful hearts to strive
To bend our wills to Thine.

O God of Love, O Lord of Truth,
Teach us each day to know
More of thy love, that we may learn
More like Thyself to grow;
And may our lives not fruitless prove.
Unto our neighbor and our race,
A tribute, Lord, to Thee.

Wesleyan, My Wesleyan

I sing thy praises o'er and o'er,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan,
Each day I love thee more and more,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan,
Thy very classroom's dear to me,
I love thy splendid Faculty,
And all that doth pertain to thee,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan.

Some other schools boast wealth and name,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan,
But you e'er claim the noblest fame,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan,
For many years you've stood the test,
Any many generations blessed,
The grandest, oldest, and the best!
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan.

No other school was e'er so fair,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan,
Not one with thee can e'er compare,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan,
Thy grand old record stands supreme,
And looking forward as I dream,
Thy future still more bright doth seem,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan.

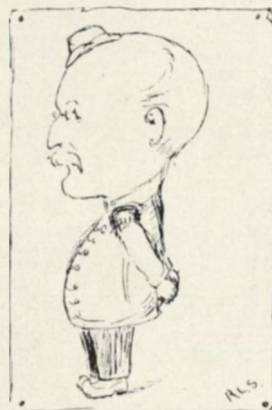

And when at last I leave thy door,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan,
Tho' I should see thee nevermore,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan,
Yet I will still be true to thee,
However far my path shall be,
Thy memory will be sweet to me,
Wesleyan, my Wesleyan.

Hail to Thee, O Wesleyan

Oh, mother dear, you stand so true,
Wesleyan, Wesleyan,
Reared high against the heaven's blue,
So, Alma Mater, now to thee
We pledge our love and loyalty.

Hail to thee, O Wesleyan,
Wesleyan, Wesleyan,
Hail to thee, O Wesleyan,
Dear old Wesleyan.

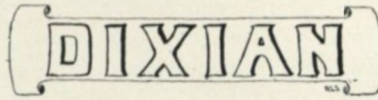

CHORUS
New knowledge in thy halls we've found,
Wesleyan, Wesleyan,
Above the busy world around
Dear old Wesleyan,
And so in spite of toil and strife
We'll sing thy praises all through life.

COMRADES 'ROUND THE CAMPFIRE.

Comrades 'Round the Campfire

'T WAS the night after the evening's surrender, and a score of victorious comrades were gathered around the campfire for the last time before disbanding. A peaceful silence pervaded the air; all nature seemed to be at attention to catch every word that came from the hero's lips. The moon had reverently crept behind a cloud lest he should lessen the brilliancy of this last campfire, but the stars were loath to leave the scene, and were blinking in the firelight's glow. As the fire shed its radiant light upon those happy faces around it, it formed a triumphant and peaceful halo over the scene. These comrades sat close together that night and as they looked into the leaping flames, visions of days spent together on the firing line—days of victory and days of defeat—came crowding up before them. Each one, in her thought, was living the old days over again and had completely forgotten the present in memories of the past. A small soldier first broke the silence as she seemed to think aloud:

"What a short time ago it seems to be since we first reported at headquarters for duty! It seems that it was only yesterday when we stood armed for the first time and timidly faced the enemy."

"Yes," some one assented, "but just think of all that's happened; think of what we've done and of the battles we've fought during that time!"

"Will we ever forget the time we chose our leader? We talked, plotted, and speculated on the outcome of our election, yet it was inevitable that Sheppard should be our choice. Who else could have led us on to victory except our own, our good Shepherd?"

"Anybody could have done it," came the modest and altogether expected retort from Sheppard; but this was emphatically denied by a chorus of voices.

"She always took the initiative and we were content to follow in her footsteps." This came from Merritt. "And," she added, "all of us could come mighty near standing in one of your tracks, couldn't we, 'Little Foot?'" There followed an outburst of laughter and a general moving of feet, as each one quietly drew her own out of sight.

"There you go with your incessant joking," said Sheppard. "Nobody ever said a word in their lives without your adding some of your brilliant remarks, but," she continued slowly, after a pause, "we couldn't have gotten along without your happiness and brightness in the midst of all our work and troubles."

DIXIAN

"Speaking of work," broke in Holder, "reminds me of how much work Emma Drew used to have. She did more than anybody else within a mile of her, yet she was always looking for something else to do."

"Yes," added Merritt, "one day I laughingly said,—Emma Drew a picture, and she took her name to heart and immediately took up art!"

"The fiercest and bloodiest of all our conflicts was waged by four of us when alone we faced the formidable army of Anglo-Saxon," began Credille. "Flournoy, Cooper, Damour, and I fought long and hard, and when the battle was over, Anglo-Saxon was dead. And," she continued, "even in the thick of the fight we could always hear two plaintive voices urging us on—those of Cooper and Flournoy—singing 'The Boy I Left Behind Me.'"

"Singing may be a means of winning the laurel wreath," said Holder, "but Mary and I have always had a handier weapon to use, that of talking." A smile played on the faces of those in the group as Wright seemed to express the thoughts of all:

"You surely don't have to tell us that," she began, "for if there's anything in the world that you can leave unsaid, that's it."

"Won't somebody put a piece of wood on the fire?" asked Brown, "it's getting so low that I can hardly see to read my book."

"You don't mean to say that you're reading now, when all of us are talking together for the last time?" came an indignant question from Bond.

"Well," she timidly answered, "I just had a little more to read and I thought I could finish it while I listened to you all."

"Huh," Bond began again, "I'll bet Dodie Atkinson is right now trying to get a beam of light on a book hid in her lap. She has taken to much novel reading lately and has one always with her. How about it, Dodie?"

There came no response from the other side of the fire, and Bond resumed:

"I wish you'd look! Here she is fast asleep, and here's the book, too," she exclaimed triumphantly as she held up in the light "Love's Young Dream," and read out the title loud enough to wake the dead.

Atkinson awoke with a start, and as she rubbed her eyes, asked in a bewildered voice, "What's the matter, what time is it?"

A smile played on the faces of those about her, as Marchman answered her question:

"I not know' what time it is, but something tells me that it's time to eat. 'Reckon how cum' we didn't have much supper to-night?" she asked hungrily.

"Because we're going home to-morrow," spoke up Powell, and then the fatted turkey will be killed for us." Her eyes took on a dreamy expression as she spoke, and the others, except Genevieve White were silently gazing into the fire. She was smiling broadly.

"What in the world do you see so funny about us going home to-morrow?" asked Helen White, rather disgustedly, because her frivolous little sister had broken into her reveries.

"Well, I was just wondering," spoke up Genevieve apologetically, "when it was that I heard the mention of that word turkey before."

"Not since your childhood days," answered Ralston, "when you studied geography."

"Huh," I feel like it's been longer ago than that," Morgan replied. "I know it must have been when I first began trying to learn how to spell Constantinople."

"You all are going back farther than I can remember," complained Wright, "but—did I ever tell you about the time I got lost in the woods and found my way out by following bear tracks?"

"No, you haven't told us about it," came a number of voices, "but please do."

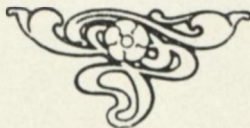

Everybody was eagerly waiting for a good long story, when Robeson spoke up:

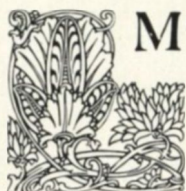

"I don't believe it ever happened; I believe it's one of the stories you've made up."

"No, it isn't, either," Wright answered emphatically, "and I can prove it by Dodie."

"Whether it's so or not," said Damour, "wait till some other time to tell it, won't you?"

Just as she was speaking, a loud bugle sound penetrated the stillness of the night air, and the comrades reluctantly obeyed for the last time the summons of taps.

MR. WHITE perpetually expostulates in polysyllabic articulations.

Almost anything I might aim at Patsy would be sure to make a hit. If the bull's-eye is large enough, it is not hard to miss.

To the get-rich-quick-Wallingfords! Here's a guaranteed money-making speculation. Buy Mary Robeson for what she's worth and sell her for what she thinks she's worth.

Occasionally Mr. Rosser very greatly relieves his classes by telling them that he is not angry.

We hope Gladys will make a success in whatever she undertakes in life, but we want to advise her, if she doesn't want to be always on the bankrupt list, not to take up the profession of hair-dressing.

Everybody was greatly relieved, after considerable anxiety, to find that the lady Mr. Daniel was out with, survived.

We fear that Eloise Cooper has done the Narcissus stunt. I guess she has one on Narcissus since the invention of mirrors has put the "placid pool" out of biz.

It is quite evident that Emma Drew will be compelled to make her way in the world by word of mouth, for she seems to be somewhat deficient (with no reflection upon her religious scruples) in the scriptural art.

Dodie Atkinson—you'll have to let her mirror break the news to her, I haven't got the heart.

We have discovered perpetual motion. As far as we have seen, it can be of little benefit, just a hot-air exhauster. Name her and you can have her if you can Holder.

We want to congratulate Nelia. In one of her customarily vain attempts at originality, she managed to repeat something straight.

Genevieve monopolizes the whole floor in ethics. No one else even has a chance to recite.

Ruth hasn't a middle name. Let's name her Uriah Heep.

Dr. Jenkins says that he is no uglier than any one else. Poor deluded gent.

"O wad some power the giftie gie us
To see ourselves as ithers see us."

Dorothy Smith doesn't even do the styles justice.

If Vera wears her brown dress a few weeks longer, she will rival Evelyn. Somebody told Evelyn that she was old enough to wear her dresses longer. I hope she has pity on the public, for she has worn that brown one long enough. It looks like Vera would have enough Brown.

Quiet.	She'd play solitaire—if there was any such thing.	"Do tell."
Freakish.	Planning parties.	"You know it ain't so!"

Epochs in History

September

- 17.—Opening day. Some members of the Faculty perform for our amusement.
- 18.—We go to classes. Thé tried to fool us about that new chair of Pedagogy. It's an old one painted over.
- 25.—Dr. Jenkins loses his voice. Students get to 10.15 classes on time.
- 31.—Everybody is allowed to sleep all day.

October

- 3.—Kathleen Holder makes a dignified exit from Economics.
- 7.—Wesleyan contributes to the State Fair. The Faculty were loyal enough to give us a holiday.
- 19.—I wonder what's the matter with Mrs. Burks. Juniors get out on time.
- 24.—E. Wright snickers in class.
- 31.—Senior Class spirit(s) pervades Mercer.

November

- 3.—After diligently searching in her bowl of stew, Mary finds an oyster.
- 4.—Last year this time!
- 18.—The Y. W. C. A. gives a grand exhibition of originality. The Faculty, for once, see themselves as others see them.
- 29.—Ruth Ralston cuts class to go to the matinee.

December

- 1.—Everybody is highly excited.
- 5.—Faculty is excusing us from class to-day, because it is so near Christmas.
- 11.—Nelia gets to English on time with her notebook.
- 18.—After much persuasion, the student body consents to a few more days holiday.

Dec. 11.

January

January 10

6.—Almost all our New Year's resolutions are broken by now. We didn't get back in time to observe any of them.

10.—Where is Evelyn Wright's brown velvet dress?

13.—Mr. Hinton is "all in." He was up until 9 o'clock last night arranging the examination schedule.

17-21.—Nothing to do but an occasional exam. Wish all weeks were like this one, time for everything.

29.—Mr. Daniel says if we all do our work, it will make him look better. For goodness sake, everybody study hard. Wish we had some lessons under Dr. Jenkins.

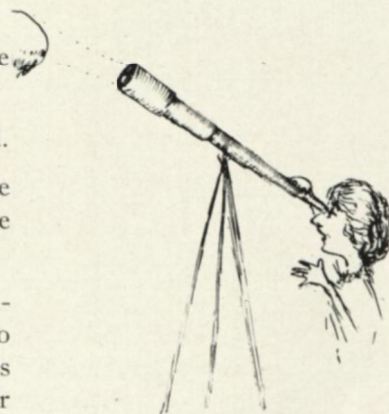

February

3.—Town girls decide to stop visiting the boarders.

9.—'Dwina discovers Mr. Hinton's bald head.

11.—Dodie slips up in German and says one of her pet "cuss" words. Pretends she is trying to pronounce German.

22.—Faculty petitions student body for holiday. The student body does not see fit to comply with the request. Mr. Daniel says that George Washington told his father that he did not cut the cherry tree with his little hatchet.

February 9

March 12

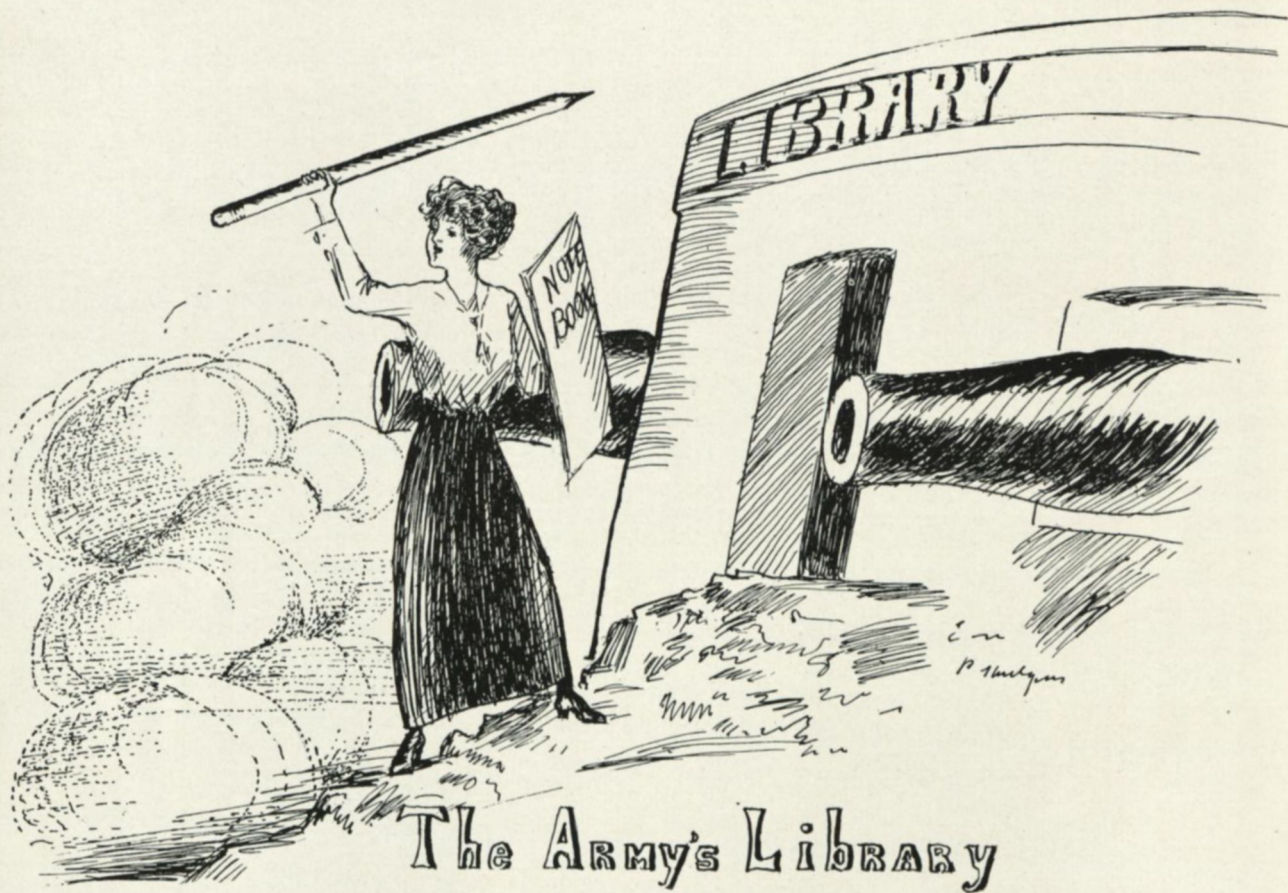

March

- 4.—German class finds Mr. Graham chewing gum.
- 12.—Vocal solo in chapel by Mr. Rosser.
- 15.—The way things sound now, it seems that Mrs. Burks is a gossip. She has been running down the elevator.
- 19.—Miss Tomlinson finds it necessary to request silence in the library.
- 23.—Mr. Quillian answers a question. Mr. Smith forgets to tell a joke.

April

- 1.—Somebody says it's April Fool's Day. The Faculty won't even let us cut classes.
- 7.—Mary Morgan wears a new string of beads.
- 14.—Miss Powell is given choice between leaving the room or leaving off studying in sociology class.
- 20.—Lucile engages in a heated argument with Mr. White. He at least convinces her that White is black.
- 27.—Latin class is entertained by a missionary talk.

Student Government Association

ALTHOUGH Wesleyan has had Student Government for only two years, much has been accomplished toward the perfect discipline of the student body in that short time. Reliance on the honor of each student has made guards and guardhouses a thing of the past, and now even spies in the ranks are entirely unnecessary.

Young Women's Christian Association

WHAT the chaplain is to an army, the Young Woman's Christian Association is to the large band of girls at Wesleyan. Like the chaplain, the Y. W. C. A. overlooks the religious welfare of the student body. Every evening a call to church is heard and a half hour vesper service is led by some member of the Association. As the chaplain on the eve of battle, prays for divine guidance and success in the army's endeavor, so also each day does the army of college girls, when about to face a new enemy and enter the thick of a fierce battle, gain new life and imparted strength for the conflict in this short period of petition to God.

These services of prayer and praise, where each person is concerned with the spiritual welfare of the whole group, promote a unified spirit among the college mates, and make each one a comrade in the noblest sense of all others.

Testimonial
OF THE
GEORGIA FEMALE COLLEGE.

The President, as the representative of the Faculty of the Georgia Female College gives this Testimonial that Miss Catharine C. Payne after having passed through a Regular Course of Study in this Institution embracing all the Sciences which are usually taught in the Colleges of the United States, with such as appropriately belong to Female Education in its most ample range, was deemed worthy of the First Degree conferred by this Institution, and accordingly it was conferred upon her on the 1st of July, 1850.

In Testimony of which the signatures of the President and Faculty, and the Seal of the College are here affixed.

George T. Force, President
W. S. Collins, Prof. Math.
Thomas B. Fiske, Prof. Nat. Science
A. M. Hall, Prof. Lang.

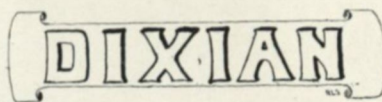

Handwritten note at the bottom of the page, partially obscured by tape.

Wesleyan Female College

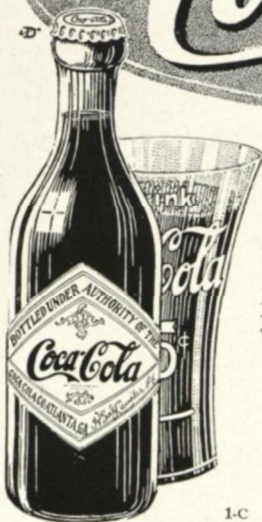

Macon, Georgia

Some of the striking points of excellence in the oldest College for women :

1. Wesleyan has an exceptionally strong Faculty of the best training, most eminent ability and successful experience.
2. Wesleyan has the best courses of study, well taught with ample modern equipment.
3. Wesleyan's Conservatory of Music is unexcelled in the South, and the Schools of Art and Oratory are equally as good.
4. Wesleyan has the greatest body of distinguished Alumnæ in the South, if not in the world.
5. Wesleyan has five large buildings in the heart of a most beautiful and healthful city.
6. Wesleyan has a splendid system of Student Government, securing ideal discipline and making the home life of the young ladies very delightful.
7. Wesleyan has an atmosphere of religious refinement and strength of character that is simply marvelous.
8. Wesleyan's charges for board, tuition, etc., are exceedingly reasonable.

FOUNDED AT PENFIELD, GEORGIA, IN 1832

MERCER UNIVERSITY

MACON, GEORGIA

Splendidly equipped for the higher education of young men. Twenty professors. Eleven buildings. Ten thousand volumes and one hundred current periodicals in library and reading room.

Three Departments

1. The University offers A. B., B. S. and A. M. degrees. The B. S. degree allows modern languages to be substituted for Latin and Greek. The diploma admits to graduate study in many of the leading American Universities.

2. SCHOOL OF LAW—Two-year course, offering B. L. degree, diploma admitting to State and U. S. Courts.

3. SCHOOL OF PHARMACY—Offering Ph. B. and Ph. M. degrees, diploma admitting to examination of State Board without drug store experience.

Mercer's Equipment

Well-equipped chemical, physical, biological and pharmaceutical laboratories; gymnasium, with hot and cold baths, and athletic field; well edited college magazine; earnest Y. M. C. A. in beautiful Y. M. C. A. building; Students' Hall, each room with perfect ventilation, and entire building heated with steam and lighted with electricity, with hot and cold water privileges on each floor; all the social and other advantages of one of the most beautiful, healthful, cultured, prosperous and progressive cities in the South.
